Consider this: A recent AOL Jobs Survey reports that one in six persons has been sexually harassed in the workplace.

The US Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) reports that last year 99,922 discrimination charges were brought - an increase of 7.2% from 2009.

And one need only to read a daily newspaper to hear stories regarding ethics, or lack thereof, in work places.

Training in the areas of sexual harassment prevention, preventing discrimination, and ethics are sound investments for organizations of all sizes. Stop the leaks in your organization before they begin. Learn more...

"BY FAILING TO PREPARE, YOU ARE PREPARING TO FAIL."

A recent study by the National Opinion Research Center at the University of Chicago reports that more than eight out of ten workers rate workplace safety as first in importance, ahead of family and maternity leave, paid sick days, and overtime pay.

While workplace fatalities in the U.S. fell over the last 2 years, many believe it was due economic reasons (fewer workers due to the recession). At the same time, however, workplace injuries remained high. Some attribute this to workers being asked to do more, creating stress, exhaustion, dangerous working conditions, etc.
